

Pippa's Song

ALICE LLOYD COLLEGE • THE JUNE BUCHANAN SCHOOL

Message from the President

Dear Friends,

As many of you know, Eastern Kentucky suffered devastating flooding at the end of July. Sadly, many lives have been lost, and hundreds are without homes. It happened just as we were getting ready to finalize this copy of Pippa's Song. Many of the stories featured in this edition were written earlier and provide highlights of ALC in recent months. We wanted to share these stories with you, but now within the context of the challenge before us as we educate our students and serve our community.

On this Pippa's Song cover, you will see the last picture taken of a campus landmark, Bridge to the Future. Countless students have walked across the bridge with hope for a brighter tomorrow. While the wood was swept away, the stone foundation stands firm. Like our Appalachian people, it has stood the test of time. We are as resilient as that old stone bridge. Through the water, mud, heartache and devastation, our communities are still here and we will overcome this challenge.

The flood waters rose above and battered our iconic bridge, raged across Purpose Road, and littered our valley with debris. From the beginning of our school, Caney Creek has been a foundational landmark of campus and a peaceful stream for our students to study beside. Now, our beloved creek is almost unrecognizable. The creek bank has eroded, compromising our roadways and bridges. Yet, as I pen this letter to you, work is being done. Heavy machinery is moving rock and dirt to make Purpose Road drivable and restore our creekbank so campus is safe and secure.

When Mrs. Lloyd first stepped into the valley that would be known as Pippa Passes, there was only a humble farm and bare hills. She saw the blank slate as an opportunity and her ailment as the least of her concerns. With faith as firm as a rock and an Oliver No. 9 typewriter, Mrs. Lloyd earnestly wrote to her friends across America, asking them to join her in helping to build the newly established Caney Creek Community Center. She knew she needed support from a source she could trust. Mrs. Lloyd trusted God and the sustenance from her friends to help her during every challenge. Through trials and tribulations, Mrs. Lloyd's dear friends across the country contributed books, clothes, and funds to help keep the Miracle on Caney Creek alive.

Throughout this newsletter, you will see how your generosity has kept the miracle alive. Your support has kept the doors of opportunity open to young people in the mountains. I am confident that with God's blessings, and our wonderful friends across the nation, we will continue to fulfill our mission in these times.

Mrs. Lloyd said more than 100 years ago, "The leaders are here! They just need an opportunity." Those powerful words are as true today as they were many years ago. We trust that this issue of Pippa's Song will encourage you as to the vital importance of Alice Lloyd College's mission. May God bless you as together we provide hope and opportunity for the youth of Appalachia.

ALC President Joe Stepp Transitions to Chancellor Role

On October 22, 2021, the Alice Lloyd College Board of Trustees approved President Joe Stepp's transition to the role of chancellor beginning August 1, 2022. As our first native Appalachian president, Stepp began his tenure as Alice Lloyd College's fifth president in 1999.

Growing up in the small town of Inez, Kentucky, he gained a personal understanding of the region's need for leaders. Through the example of his father and mother, Joe and Irma Derderian Stepp, Chancellor Stepp learned the values of hard work, education, service and faith in God.

Stepp first served ALC as the student services administrator, athletic director, and head men's basketball coach. In 1989, he transitioned to the role of ALC's vice president of student services, where he stayed until he was appointed president of the college. During his years as president, Stepp was awarded an Honorary Doctorate of Administration from the University of the Cumberlands as well as an Honorary Doctorate of Laws from College of the Ozarks. Additionally, in 2000, he attended the Harvard Seminar for New Presidents, and in 2014, he participated in the Harvard Seminar for Experienced Presidents.

During his 23 years of service, Stepp has seen over 2,000 students graduate, added six majors and four minors, and expanded the campus with five new buildings. All building projects were fully funded before breaking ground, and each educational program was added in consideration of current and future students, as well as the region's needs. Stepp also oversaw the addition of Joseph W. Craft III School of Business and Appalachian Leadership.

Since Stepp's tenure began in 1999, the College has received national attention from Fox Business, NPR, Forbes Magazine, and countless other publications. Stepp has held tightly to the College's mission while remaining focused on improving operations. The Student Work Program, a plan initially developed by Mrs. Lloyd to offset the cost of education, continues to be a pillar of the College's operation. The endowment has increased by nearly $47 million, and the College continues to operate with no debt. As he reflects on his presidency, Stepp says his greatest achievement is educating leaders for Appalachia while staying out of debt thanks to the goodwill of our wonderful friends.

Mike Duncan, ALC Chairman of the Board of Trustees, remarks on Stepp's success as president by saying, "We've had the same president for 23 years, and he's done a wonderful job for us. His strong leadership has advanced our capacity to provide high-quality educational opportunities to Appalachian students."

In the role of chancellor, Stepp plans to continue to help ALC perform its mission, as well as spend more time developing young employees in critical positions.

Looking toward the future, Stepp states, "Because of our mission, we are positioned to do one thing better than any four-year college in the world - educate leaders for Appalachia." While Stepp will continue to work hard for ALC, he is looking forward to spending more time with his three grandchildren - Oaklyn, Major, and Macon.

For nearly forty years, Stepp has dedicated his life to Alice Lloyd College. As he transitions into his new role, he said, "It has been an honor to be part of God's plan for the people here and to watch these students grow into adults who will change the future of our Appalachian region and the world. As those who knew my mother and long-time ALC volunteer, Miss Irma, she often reminded us that God is in control. I look forward to serving in my new position and working with faculty, staff, and our friends across the country as we continue to see God's blessing upon this Miracle on Caney Creek."

Historic Flooding in Eastern Kentucky

In the early morning hours of Thursday, July 28th, devastating flood waters swept through Eastern Kentucky and roared down Caney Creek. The damage within our communities is indescribable. Although spared from significant damage, ALC's infrastructure was significantly impacted. Many in our ALC family, and the greater community, have suffered unimaginable loss. The College remains in prayer for these individuals and families.

On campus, the flood waters weathered away the banks of Caney Creek, littering debris along The Purpose Road and leaking into one campus building. Storage containers, a vehicle, and other heavy debris floated downstream, tearing down fencing and causing damage to bridges and roadways. Additionally, ALC's iconic Bridge to the Future was severely damaged, but the foundation was spared. Fortunately, the campus community has banded together to clean up as much as possible, and work has already begun to rebuild infrastructure.

Students, faculty, staff, alumni, and community members spread out across campus to work on clean-up efforts. Generous friends from across the country stepped up to help meet immediate needs. President Jim Stepp joined in by picking up debris and clearing the roadway of heavy trees and branches. ALC professor, Sara Pitts, and her family transported supplies from Bowling Green, Kentucky, to aid in relief on campus and throughout the community. Those who could not travel to Pippa Passes sent supplies, monetary donations, and prayers for the College.

In the days and weeks following the flood, the ALC community has come together to serve those in need across the mountains. Faculty, staff, students, and alumni have cooked and delivered meals and supplies to hard hit areas, wading through creeks and walking up hollows to provide for those unable to leave their homes. Dr. Kassi Marshall, ALC class of 2000, has partnered with Water with Blessings to provide Sawyer PointONE filters and buckets to flood victims. Dr. Marshall has traveled to several communities demonstrating the filter which turns creek water into clean drinking water. College community members have also served at local churches and supply centers.

Although this event marks the worst flooding Eastern Kentucky has seen, the College has worked diligently to have campus ready for the fall semester. To provide support and relief to students impacted by flooding, ALC offered early move-in. The College also received donations and were able to provide affected students with necessities for the school year. President Stepp remarked, "Just as ALC has been a light unto the mountains for nearly 100 years, we will continue to fulfill that mission in these times."

For almost 100 years, ALC has weathered many storms, but has always remained a light unto the mountains. Through God's grace and the help of wonderful friends, dedicated alumni, and hard-working community members, Alice Lloyd College will remain steadfast and continue to provide opportunities and support for the Appalachian region.

Senior Spotlight: Himala Gonzales

Himala Gonzales, a senior from Hazard, Kentucky, loves to be involved in anything that brings a smile to others. She came to Alice Lloyd College to pursue her dream job of becoming a dentist and continuing her love of theatre. Acting and dentistry have always been a part of Himala's life. "At a young age, I found a passion for dentistry. As a child, I pretended to be a dentist when I played with my friends," she says. While many may not see the connection between science and art, Himala embraces them by majoring in biology and minoring in chemistry and speech communication and theatre arts.

The most important thing Himala believes she can do in life is to bring happiness to everyone she meets. As a dentist, she hopes to help her patients feel like the most confident version of themselves through their smiles. She says, "I've watched patients receive new teeth and completely light up with tears of joy because it reflected their confidence." Her experience in the ALC biology and chemistry department has prepared her for her field through challenging classes while also assuring her she chose the right career path by participating in several clubs and organizations.

Himala serves as the Vice-President of the Pre-Dental Society, which was formed in the fall of 2021. The Pre-Dental Society aims to help students get a more comprehensive grasp of dentistry by job shadowing local dentists, discussing the process of applying to dental school, and keeping up with pre-requisites. With the Pre-Dental Society, Himala presented good oral hygiene tips to elementary students at The June Buchanan School. Himala is also a member of the Allied Health Club, which provides students with various experiences related to a career in the medical field. Allied Health Club members also participate in several community service projects throughout the semester.

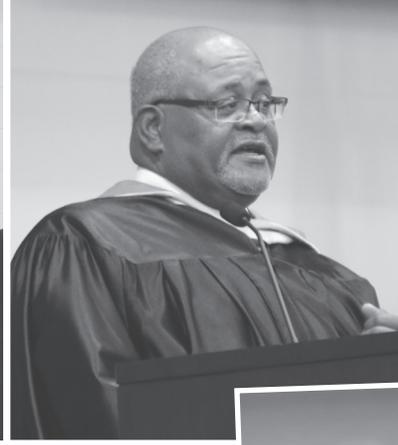

Besides her experience in academia at ALC, she has also flourished in theatre. Himala has been drawn to the stage since she was nine years old, performing in her elementary school musical. She states, "From then on, I loved participating in anything to do with performing arts." She has been in several plays at ALC and starred as Kathryn Schaub in ALC's spring production Radium Girls. She says, "What I love about theatre is that you get to escape your reality and become someone else." Himala is also an Alpha Phi Omega National Theatre Honors Society member.

Himala never strays far from the theatre, and for her dedication, she was awarded the Campbell Arts Center (CAC) Work Ethic Award. The CAC Work Ethic Award is awarded to a student who shows the utmost commitment to the auditorium. Himala's dedication to setting up the auditorium for convocations and ensuring the auditorium was cleaned before and after each event led her to receive the award. Himala has also received the annual Theatre Award.

At ALC, full-time students must work a minimum of 10 hours a week in their designated work-study placement. Himala completes 20 hours a week as a Teacher's Assistant for the Division of Art Humanities and Social Science. As a part of her work-study, Himala assists Dr. Charles Mullins with office work and other daily tasks. Dr. Mullins has seen Himala as a student, worker, and performer. He says, "Himala is dedicated to her academic pursuits with a deep appreciation of both the arts and sciences. Her talents will be greatly missed at ALC Theatre, but I foresee Himala successfully achieving her academic and professional goals." With her course load, extracurricular activities, and additional work-study hours, Himala stays busy, but she has learned valuable time management skills necessary in her professional career.

While Himala has several career goals, she also has a heart for giving back and knows the importance of serving her community. As a Phi Beta Lambda (PBL) member, Himala helps pack 30 to 60 food bags a week on campus. The food bags are then distributed to local elementary schools and given to students with limited access to food at home. Additionally, Himala is a Sunday school teacher at The Hilltop Full Gospel Church in Jackson, Kentucky. She has also been a Drive Coordinator for several events at the Haven House and the Perry and Floyd County Animal Shelters.

Himala Gonzales came to Alice Lloyd College not only in hopes of pursuing her professional career but also to let her creative side flourish. Himala is thankful for ALC's liberal arts education, where she had the opportunity to obtain a bachelor's degree in biology while participating in the arts. Mrs. Lloyd and Ms. June knew the importance of a well-rounded education as a critical foundation of the College's curriculum to encourage students, like Himala, to become a light unto the mountains.

Alice Lloyd College Celebrates the Class of 2022

Alice Lloyd College would like to congratulate the graduating Class of 2022. On May 7th, baccalaureate and commencement ceremonies were held in the Perry Campus Center on Coach “J” Court. The 95 graduates were encouraged by commencement speaker Jerry L. Edwards. As a 1982 alumnus, Mr. Edwards spoke of his time on Caney Creek and the lessons he learned along the Purpose Road, which he was able to apply in his 32 years of service as a teacher and coach. Service is a way of life for him, and through several life stories, he motivated the graduates to look for opportunities to serve their fellow man. Mr. Edwards finished with a quote he carries with him and one he would like them to remember, “Look back and thank God. Look forward and trust God. Look around and serve God. Look in and find God.”

The success of the school year is seen by the graduates’ accomplishments and achievements of the last four years. The 2022 valedictorians are Ryan Chafin, Dalton McCown, and Carlene Salyers, and the salutatorian is Morgan Owens Connelly.

Each year the miracle on Caney Creek continues. With every graduating class, ALC sends out new leaders to serve the Appalachian region. Undoubtedly, the ALC Class of 2022 is prepared to become the future of Appalachia. Once again, congratulations to the ALC Class of 2022!

ALC Hosts the Fifth Annual Alumni Purpose Day

The Alice Lloyd College Office of Alumni Relations hosted the fifth annual Alumni Purpose Day on June 9th. For five years, ALC alumni have been showing up on social media and campus to give back to their Alma Mater and the future generation of servant leaders. This year was no different, with the ALC Office of Alumni Relations Facebook page reconnecting alumni through games, giveaways, and memories of campus. The College is grateful for the immense support given on that day by alumni across the nation.

Many alumni wrote or spoke about their reason for giving back to ALC. Pat Riley, a 2021 graduate, shared, "...the memories and friendships I made while in the valley are some of the best of my life. I will forever treasure ALC and the opportunity it gave me and continues to give the children of Appalachia."

Likewise, Shasta Bates, a 2002 alumna, encouraged her classmates to donate as she wrote, "I am so blessed that I was able to get a bachelor's degree with no debt at all and remain close to home. I have a lot of fond memories of Alice Lloyd. It definitely prepared me for life and the workforce."

*"I will forever treasure
ALC and the opportunity it gave me..."*

ALC alumni are some of the best in the country for annual alumni participation. From their experience along the Purpose Road, they realize the importance of giving back so future generations will have the same opportunities they received. Thank you to each alum who participated in Alumni Purpose Day. Your support helped to make the event a huge success!

A Journey to Japan: Edward Smith

From the rolling mountains of Eastern Kentucky to the mountainous island of Japan, Edward Smith, a 1952 ALC graduate, has exemplified a life of service to God and country. He grew up in the small rural community of Kite, Kentucky. When Mr. Smith was ten years old, his father passed away, and while his mother did all she could to help guide and teach him, she knew he needed more. Caney Creek Community Center was the only place she knew that would provide him with the best opportunities. He reflects, “She was a wonderful mother, but for teaching me to be honest and truthful in all my affairs, she could not give me further help. She took me to Caney one day, walking across the mountains to enroll me in the school there. She returned and left me with my uncle C. B. Thornsberry, and the very next day, I returned home. She immediately took me back, and I stayed this time, living with this same uncle.”

He stayed at Caney Creek Community Center, where he learned many lessons and made several memories, such as tricking the night watchman by placing a pail of water on his dorm room door frame and watching the night watchman get wet when he opened the door. Nevertheless, he graduated in 1952 from Caney Junior College along with 16 peers. Mr. Smith went on to be the only teacher in a one-room schoolhouse in Carr Creek, Kentucky. However, he soon enlisted into the Air Force, where his original orders were to go to Korea for the Korean War. His orders changed, and Mr. Smith instead spent two years in Japan. Little did he know that when he returned home, he would be beginning a journey to return to Japan.

Upon his arrival, his younger sister, Mildred, told him about how she accepted the Lord as her Savior and began to witness to Mr. Smith. At the same time, he became interested in one of his sister’s friends who attended the same church as her. “A few months later, I yielded to Christ and became a born-again Christian. I then began to ponder what I would do in life as a Christian, and the idea of becoming a missionary to Japan began to occupy my thinking,” he said. Mr. Smith took action to achieve his missionary goals and enrolled in Southwestern Assemblies of God University in Texas. After completing his degree, he needed a few years of pastoral experience before applying as a missionary in Japan. However, after much prayer and guidance, in 1967, he and his family went to Japan.

For 25 years, he and his family traveled across Japan and began several ministries. They began by studying the Japanese language for two years. After learning the language, he traveled to a small town outside Hiroshima City called Soja. There he began a new church and started a boys group called “Royal Rangers,” which is similar to America’s Boy Scout Organization. From there, he went to Okinawa, where he began a youth ministry called “Joy House,” where he held religious services, Bible Studies, and English lessons. The final city he traveled to was Tokyo, where he was the pastor of Yokota Christian Center, a church for US soldiers. Additionally, he states, “I also did motorcycle evangelism and helped establish a Gospel Bluegrass Band in Japan.”

Mr. Smith’s journey along the Purpose Road began with a fearful start. Yet, through the lessons taught and learned on and off the banks of Caney Creek, he found his way to his life’s purpose of serving God and his country. He says, “I am especially indebted to Mrs. Lloyd, June Buchanan, and the faculty members who were my teachers. These have had a major influence in my life and contributed to whatever success I had as a missionary to Japan, pastor of several churches, and living my life daily as a true follower of Christ.” For almost 100 years, Alice Lloyd College has provided the opportunity of education to the people of Appalachia to guide them into leaders for the region and, as with Mr. Smith, leaders for the world.

Congratulations to the following graduates of The June Buchanan School:

Courtney Breeding – daughter of Lisa and Shane Breeding of Isom, Kentucky.

Tyler Maggard – son of Vena Sumner and Scotty Maggard of Pippa Passes, Kentucky.

John Meadors – son of Tim Meadors of Leburn, Kentucky.

Abby Potter – daughter of Amanda and Langley Potter of Eastern, Kentucky.

Joshua Pugh – son of Robert and Celeste Pugh of Isom, Kentucky.

Crusaders in Action

The June Buchanan School's Crusaders in Action have been busy serving their community this summer! Students decorated downtown Hindman with blue bows in support of fallen police officers, set up a concession stand to raise money for a mission trip to Guatemala, and hosted a cornhole tournament to raise funds for the mission trip. CIA has also volunteered at the Kentucky River Regional Animal Shelter and held a car wash. Visit their Facebook page, JBS Crusaders in Action 'CIA', to learn more about the organization.

VIRTUAL Day of Service OCTOBER 8, 2022

Because so many in our region have been impacted by recent Eastern Kentucky flooding, ALC will not host Appalachia Day Homecoming this year. Instead, we encourage alumni and friends of the College to commit to a day of volunteer service wherever they see a need. We look forward to welcoming everyone back next year to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the College!
