¹To meet new federal guidelines for the Cost of Attendance, we have added three extra meals per week to students' budgets, going from 18 meals per week to 21 meals per week. Since this does not affect a student's direct cost, we placed the allowance as a separate budget item. Per the FAFSA Simplification Act, the food and housing allowance is based on the student's situation as described below.

- For resident students – a standard allowance that provides the equivalent of three meals per day
- For students who do not choose institutionally owned or operated food services, a standard allowance for purchasing food off campus provides the equivalent of three meals per day. Off/campus/with parent students will not see an additional food and housing cost item as their food and housing costs already account for three meals per day. The cost of attendance is based on full-time enrollment.

Indicates tuition, matriculation, and commuter fees

The Cost of Attendance amounts are estimated based on full-time enrollment. Full-time enrollment is 12 hours per semester. After enrollment begins these figures are updated to the actual amount based on enrollment. If a student is enrolled less than full-time (12 hours) there will be an adjustment to their Cost of Attendance.
